St. Andrews

The Lamp and Shield

The St. Andrews Way

A motley crew battles the notorious Suite V and uses their wits. In the end the Polar Bears end up on their butts, because we let go.

We live in a global village and St. Andrews is the epitome of the melting pot. We come from all over the world, all different backrounds, upbringings, social classes, but we all mingle as if we have known each other all our lives. It is the St. Andrews way. Possibly more than any other college, St. Andrews teaches tolerance and appreciation of those that are different. The St. Andrews student embraces this doctrine and treats everyone like family.

Whether you're one of those Orange hippies, a Suite V Polar Bear, a wheelie, a Lacrosse Player, a Meck Man, a Granvillite, an Academy member, an Ecuadorian, a Zim, a freshman, a piper, an art student, a walkie, or a jock, it's all good. We mix. We Mingle. You find the unlikeliest pairs here. We're all St. Androids, that's all that matters.

Kim Ribaudo, honored graduate left St. Andrews last Spring in style. She not only edited the yearbook but also juggled along with classes, the SGA Treasury, Academy Mentorship, and honors research in her major of Mathematics.

Back in the Summer of '96

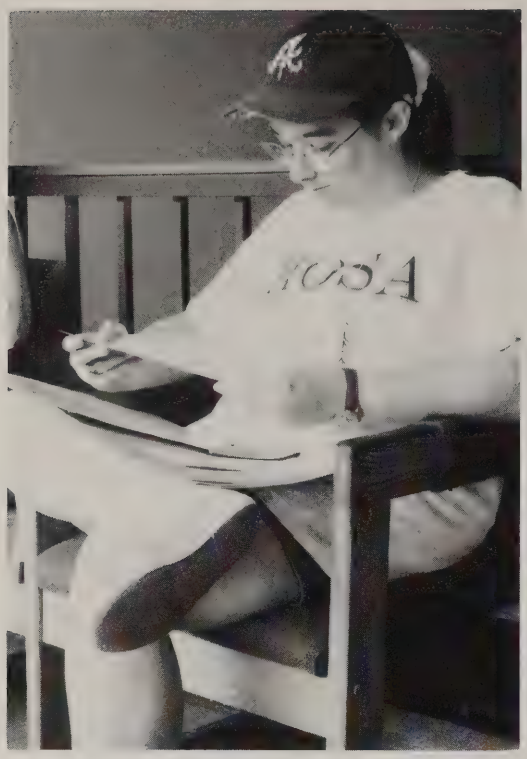
What is the Summer with out a little tanning in the pool? Look at Britta and Lisa catching some rays.

Shelby enjoyed the Summer weather with some friends in Hersey Park

Beth Reeves passed some time in Venice, Italy, soaking up the Summer in a gondola.

Here McKenna Alford poses for a picture with "her girls" at Camp Matery, where she has spent every Summer since she was 7 years old.

Britta Reide and her roommate Lisa Fraser did more than spend their Summer in the pool. They went to Atlanta to work for the Olympics.



Lisa is already studying up on how to make it through the first semester.

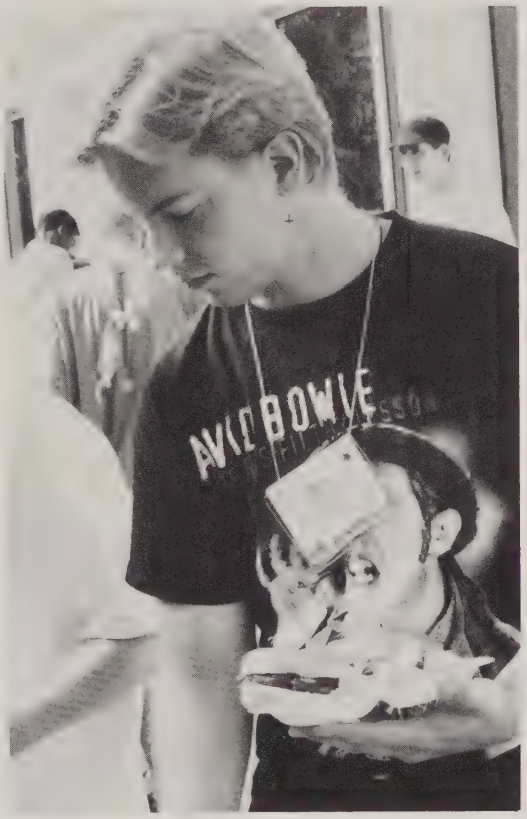
Quest

The Quest leaders gather with their deciples

Stuart and Mark tell Mary excitedly about the size of their room.

The new students get their first real taste of SAGA, outside.

Matt loaded up with SAGA food, pauses to choose carefully his drink.



Quest, a new summer orientation program, was quite a success this summer. The program gave new students, both freshmen and tranfers alike, a view of what to expect in the fall.

Blown Away
Hurricane Fran

After only one day of classes Hurricane Fran came blowing through our little community. Damage in the area was not as bad as other places like Raleigh. Luckily, we were spared. However, we were not all together immune. The wind blew hard, and we lost a couple of trees. After a night of staying up late together, fearing the worst, we rose to find that our campus, for the most part, was still in tact.

Obviously the campus was not the only target of her wrath, out in Laurinburg the damage was often much worse.

Fran really dealt athletics a big blow. She ripped at the gymnasium ceiling and left the gym in shambles. For the rest of the season, volleyball and women's basketball games had to be played at the local high school.

The St. Andrews campus comes together in times of tragedy. After a night of hurricane parties, several people banded together to return our campus to normal. Classes were cancelled for the second time in St. Andrews history.

The most obvious evidence of Fran was the abundance of debris and the occasional downed branches.

All Good Things...

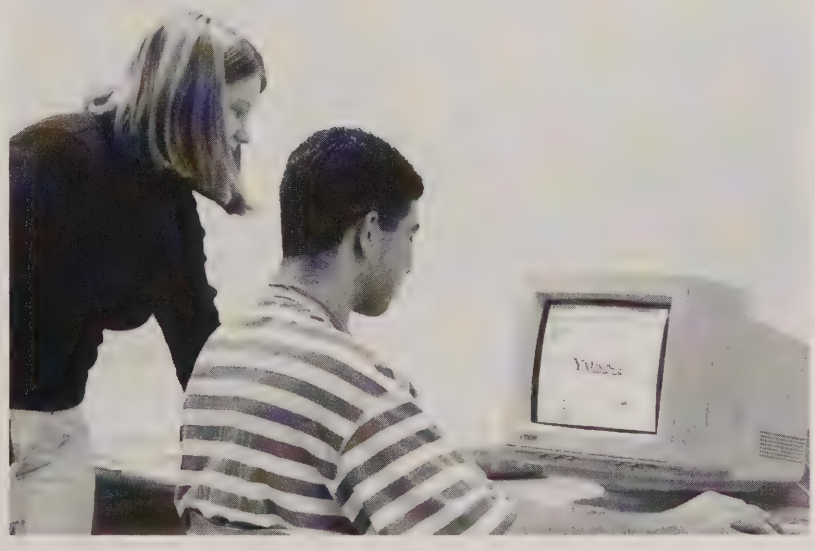
Academics

Learning the St. Andrews Way

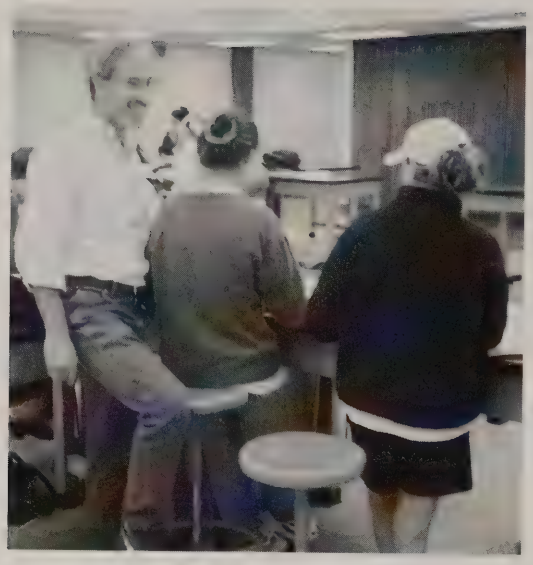
A freshman SAGE class decides to hold class by the lake.

This student learns the best way: hands on.

St. Andrews is slowly realizing its dream of becoming an electronic campus. Students now use the internet as a regualr form of research. Here, Brooke and Mike begin to surf the net from one of the search engines.



Mathematical, Natural and Health Sciences

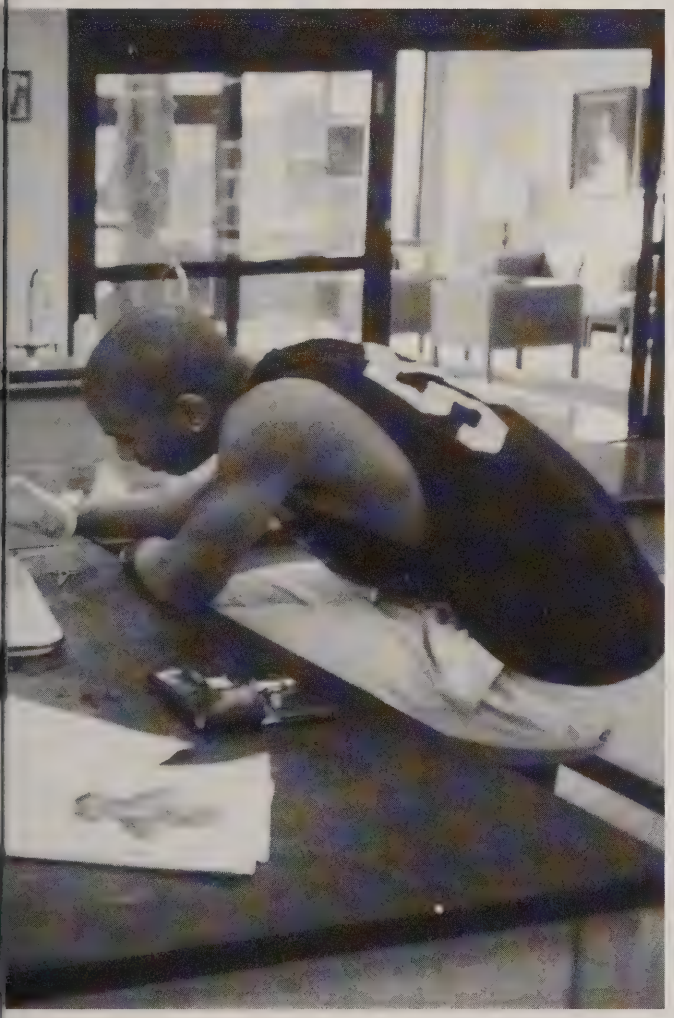


Frank Watson responds heroically to a cry for help from disillusioned biology students.

Careful... 1ml no more no less.

Anatomy students Shelly Kleinschmidt and Deon Wingfield poke inquisitively at Fluffy.

Laura Arwood explains a little Genetics to Sara Jusseaume



Mike Romano and Seleena Terry learn a little about cell membranes.

Humanities and Fine Arts

Social and Behavioral Sciences

What would St. Andrews be without those presentations? Here, a group gives a presentation on personal finance.

Dan Oedy is really focusing he wants every penny out of his St. Andrews education.

Stage fright is not an option. At St. Andrews, we spend a lot of time in front of the class.
